

KBA 8057

2 RY

BARTH, Karl. How I Changed My Mind; intro. & epilogue by John D. Godsey. photogs. bibliog. notes. 96pp. John Knox Pr. $3. 66-17277. THEOLOGY/AUTOBIOG
Karl Barth is perhaps the most influential theologian of the 20th century. "On three occasions the editor of The Christian Century requested Karl Barth to write an article on how his mind had changed during the immediately preceding decade. Barth's three responses . . . are for the first time printed together and made accessible in this book." In the introduction and epilogue, John D. Godsey, a former student of Barth's, traces the theologian's life and thought up to 1928 and after 1958. Barth's humanity shines through this delightful little book, which can serve as a useful introduction to the man and his thought, and which is recommended for public libraries. —Sigmund W. Wojtowicz, Sr. Ln., Bayonne, N.J., F.P.L.

John — we can use this quote for Librarian (Someday!)
Sandy pls fill in Review folder

LJ DECEMBER 15, 1966

JOHN KNOX REVIEW

LIBRARY JOURNAL
magazine

VAN-1967
date of issue

—author's copy —editorial copy